

SEALED NOTE — FOUND IN COAT POCKET

A folded sheet of paper sealed with dark red wax. The seal is a circle with a small sun pressed into the centre — a mark you do not recognise. The wax is already broken, as if opened before you found it. Inside, the handwriting is neat and controlled, the kind learned by repetition. Auris seminary script.

| The willing heart gives freely what the bound heart cannot.

Auris scripture, in the writer's own hand.

SCRAP — SECOND COAT POCKET

A torn scrap from a larger sheet, tucked into a second pocket. The handwriting is neat, precise, and controlled — an educated hand. No seal, no address. This was never sent.

| You have no idea what you are looking for.
| When you find it, you will understand why I did not want you to.

Unsigned.
